Bart Johnson is an actor, writer and director. He currently recurs on Taylor Sheridan's Landman, opposite Billy Bob Thornton and Jon Hamm, and on Yellowstone, and he stars in the upcoming film Saint Clare with Bella Thorne and Ryan Phillippe. He will forever be known and loved by fans worldwide as Coach Jack Bolton in Disney's High School Musical franchise, and he returned to East High for the final season of High School Musical: The Musical: The Series on Disney+.

Bart's first job as an actor was in the Francis Ford Coppola-produced film My Family (Mi Familia), followed by a series regular role as Nelson Tucker on The WB's Hyperion Bay. He has recurred on Ryan Murphy's 9-1-1: Lone Star, Amazon's Gortimer Gibbons Life on Normal Street, Lifetime's The Client List and JAG. He has guest starred on Hawaii Five-0, The Rookie, All American, NCIS, NCIS: Los Angeles, Las Vegas, CSI: Miami, Tremors, Clueless and Hot in Cleveland. His films include Held, Small Town Crime and Little Women.

Bart added writing and directing to his work with the 35mm short film The Run, shot entirely in Mexico, and he is developing it as a feature. He is also writing and producing the survival thriller Cold Front, in which he will star.

Through Good Brothers Entertainment, Bart works with his longtime collaborators, best friends and real-life brothers, Adam and Brad Johnson. The three hitchhiked across Mexico for their documentary Six Bucks and a Bottle of Water, and in 2026 Bart and Adam shot the BYUtv comedy pilot Brother Knows Best.

Bart owns the Johnson Mill, his family's historic 1880 mill property in Midway, Utah, outside Park City. He lives for film, travel and sports: skiing, surfing, dirt bikes, soccer, boating, mountain biking and flying planes as a licensed pilot.

Bart married actress Robyn Lively in 1999 in Los Angeles. The two often share the screen in film and television, and fans can follow them on their renovation and travel social media channels. They have three children, Baylen, Kate and Wyatt, and Bart is happiest coaching his kids' soccer teams, screenwriting, creating content and playing music.
